Answers to your Ultimate Home Comfort questions

What is Ultimate Home Comfort and what makes it different from traditional financing?

Ultimate Home Comfort is a way for homeowners to keep their homes comfortable and efficient while enjoying predictable costs for 10 years. Ultimate Home Comfort includes:

- Coleman[®] High-Efficiency Heating and Cooling System 10 Years of Blower Cleaning
- ✓ 10-Year Parts and Labor Warranty
- ✓ 10 Years of Service Repairs
- ✓ 10 Years of Annual Maintenance

If you were to purchase a heating and cooling system using traditional financing, the package typically would not include a complete system purchase, an annual maintenance plan, bumper-to-bumper warranty and one low monthly payment.

Where is Ultimate Home Comfort not permissible and why?

Ultimate Home Comfort is not permissible for commercial, residential new construction (RNC) and multi-family housing greater than four (4) units. Multi-family homes with up to four units are considered residential for the purposes of financing, whereas properties with 5 or more units are considered commercial real estate, so financing those is a different process not supported by Ultimate Home Comfort.

What credit score does a homeowner need to qualify for Ultimate Home Comfort?

A consumer's application will be evaluated on any number of underlying credit factors, including, but not limited to, their credit score. The program is designed as a prime/super-prime offering.

If a homeowner does not qualify for Ultimate Home Comfort, what other options are available?

The homeowner has multiple options and should work directly with their contractor to determine what best fits their financial needs. A homeowner may choose to pay in cash, use a traditional credit card or utilize a "second look" financing option instead. This would likely involve purchasing Ultimate Home Comfort components separately through their contractor's à la carte options.

Can a homeowner lease multiple systems on one lease payment?

Only a single Ultimate Home Comfort system can be leased under each lease agreement. Separate lease agreements would be necessary to support the leasing of multiple systems and would require separate monthly payments.
